

Jonathan Crowell
and Sydney Waldron are wed

Sydney Britt Waldron, daughter of Ms. Anne L. Shuman of Philadelphia, and Lee D. Waldron of Merion, PA, was married on October 8, 2016, to Jonathan Linden Crowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Crowell (Sullivan—Elizabeth A. Reichmann) of Radnor, PA. The ceremony took place at St. Mark’s Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, with a reception at The Racquet Club of Philadelphia.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Frank R. Shuman Jr. (Ruth Anne Myrick) of Hilton Head, SC, and the late Mr. Shuman. She is also the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sidney R. Waldron (Marlea Cornwell) of West Lake, OH. The bride’s great-great-grandfather Frank Randolph Shuman was an inventor and engineer known for his pioneering work on the solar engine.

The groom is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Linden N. Reichmann

Above: A New Orleans-style brass band led the wedding party and guests to the reception a few blocks away.

MR. & MRS. CROWELL BY FEMINA PHOTO & DESIGN

(Johanna A. G. Arends) of Everett, WA, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. William G. Crowell (Jean Biddle Page) of Penn Valley, PA. Mrs. Crowell was among the first female business owners in the Philadelphia area as proprietor of Jean Crowell Studio in Narberth, PA.

Post-ceremony, the couple exited the church and headed on foot down Locust Street, which had been closed briefly via a permit secured for the occasion. A New Orleans-style brass band led the wedding party and guests to the reception a few blocks away, as is customary in Louisiana— fittingly for the bride, who spent her college years in the southern city.

Mrs. Crowell attended Episcopal Academy and Lower Merion High School. She is a graduate of Tulane University. Mr. Crowell attended The Haverford School, and is a graduate of Bowdoin College.

The couple took a wedding trip on safari in Namibia. They reside in Philadelphia.